Calbindin has been found in the basal ganglia of the monkey Macaca fuscata by immunocytochemical staining, using antisera against the rabbit skeletal muscle and rabbit parietal eye calbindin. Light microscopic immunostaining was found in the substantia nigra, in numerous medium-sized neurons of the ventrolateral and ventral lateral nuclei of the thalamus and in the ventral lateral geniculate nucleus of the thalamus. In the basal ganglia, immunostaining was most dense in the external pallidum, subthalamic nucleus, internal pallidum and putamen. Calbindin-immunoreactive neurons in these nuclei tended to be smaller than medium-sized neurons, many of which had two to four primary dendrites. Neurons in the globus pallidus and pars reticularis of the substantia nigra did not exhibit immunostaining. Dense punctate immunostaining was associated with the inner surface of the neuropil, as well as with cell bodies, dendrites, and axons. The distribution and morphology of immunostained neurons in the monkey basal ganglia are similar to those observed in the rabbit basal ganglia, suggesting that this protein may be a more generally useful marker for identifying a subpopulation of neurons in the central nervous system., an object of the instant invention is to provide a new and improved construction for a latch device of the type that can be slidably received in the same aperture as the fastener that holds the object to be secured. Another object of the instant invention is to provide a new and improved construction for a latch that is snapably received in the aperture of the fastener. Still another object of the invention is to provide a novel and improved construction of a latch that is adapted for use with a fastener that defines apertures for receiving the latch. Still another object of the invention is to provide a novel construction of a latch that is relatively simple and inexpensive to manufacture, assemble and utilize. Further objects and advantages of the invention will become apparent upon reading the following detailed description taken together with the drawings.Spade Spade or spades may refer to: Places Croatia Zrće, local name for Spadje Romania

The war on drugs has failed ===== The war on drugs has failed because of medical marijuana Ten states and the District of Columbia have now legalized the possession of medical marijuana. If you live in one of these states you may already know that you are free to use medical marijuana. You may not realize that you are also free to grow marijuana for medical use in accordance with state law. You are free to grow as much marijuana as you need and you can even give some away. Yes, you do have to give some of your marijuana away. First, you give it away. If you don't, the federal government can arrest you. Second, you need to give some marijuana away. And, you have to give all of your marijuana away. If you don't give away your marijuana you can be arrested. The ones that give you marijuana free are called caregivers. Some states also call caregivers dispensers. If you grow your own marijuana you can also use it. It doesn't matter if you are a medical marijuana patient or not. You can use your marijuana whenever you want as long as you follow the law and give some away. There is one state that doesn't allow you to grow your own marijuana and that is California. California did not want to expand medical marijuana laws and allow medical marijuana patients to grow their own marijuana. California This is not true. Anywhere that medical marijuana is legal the federal government can arrest you. Hi admin, just want to give a big thanks to you. This was one of the best essay I have ever read. You did a great job.
